Medicine and Media: The Delicate Balance

Sponsored by the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities and the University

Who Should Attend

Professionals in the fields of medical humanities, bioethics, and health care reporting.

Topics

This conference will interrogate and reflect upon the complex and complicated relationship between the media and medical researchers, practitioners, ethicists, and educators. Whether we are using an episode of E.R. in our courses or answering questions about cloning for the local television station medical humanists and ethicists are constantly engaged in a dynamic process of affecting and being affected by the media, a process that demands and deserves critical analysis. Presentations will address a range of relevant issues from a variety of disciplinary perspectives.
